Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because:

The Applicant argued that there is no suggestion to combine Van Der Salm and Barkat because "Van Der Salm emphasized the algorithmic conversion of caller identification information into ring tones to avoid a large memory containing ring tones, and this counters any suggestion that a name recognition database" (See remark, page 3). The Examiner respectfully disagrees with the Applicant's argument. In this instant case, Van Der Salm does teach a memory 19 (database) for storing telephone numbers with theirs associated customized audio files (name sound) used by the caller identification circuit for gettting user's attention during its operation of receiving incoming calls (e.g. JOHN calling) (See page 16, lines 25-36, page 19 line 37 to page 20 line 2) and Barkat teaches a database for storing customized audio files (name sound) with theirs associated telephone numbers used by the voice activated dialing circuitry for getting user's attention during its operation of dialing outgoing calls (e.g. calling JOHN) (See figs. 2-4 and col. 3 line 26 to col. 5 line 45). Since both Van Der Salm and Barkat teach the utilization of database containing telephone numbers and theirs associated audio files by circuitry of mobile communication device; therefore they are combinable and Van Der Salm in view of Barkat wherein device's caller identification circuitry and device's voice activated dialing circuitry utilize the same database of telephone numbers and theirs associated audio files (name sound), would arrive to the claimed invention. Besides, the previous action mailed on 07/03/2006 was made Final based upon the amendment filed on 12/16/2004.
